Goldy's Life in Danger

by Preeti Kumari

THERE WAS a pond in Champakvan. It was home to many fishes. Out of them Goldy was the sweetest of all. She had a shine like gold, different from others. She was visible from outside water very clearly.

Goldy was so beautiful that her beauty had become troublesome for her. The animals that came to the pond to drink water could see her clearly and would want to make her their prey. Many times Goldy barely saved herself. She was very upset and did not know what to do.

Timu Frog was a good friend of Goldy. One day, she told him that her life was in danger. She asked him to suggest some way to save her.

Timu said, "Goldy, you don't worry. I will do something," and he started thinking.

He went to his friend Tengu Alligator. He said, "Goldy is my friend. Her life is in danger. You must help her."

Tengu said, "If she is your friend, I will surely help her," and thought, 'I must do something for Goldy.'

He went to his friend Meeku Crane. Meeku said, "I will surely help if you say," and started thinking what to do.

When he did not understand anything, he went to his friend Chimpu Elephant.

Meeku said to Chimpu, "My friend's life is in danger. Please help her. Think of something to save her."

Chimpu replied, "Well, if you say, I will think of something. But who is your friend?"

Meeku answered, "Goldy Fish."

Chimpu was shocked. He said, "You are a crane. How can a fish be your friend? You satiate your hunger by eating fish."

The crane replied, "Actually, Tengu Alligator told me that Goldy is his friend. So I was ready to help Goldy."

Chimpu Elephant then went to Tengu Alligator. He asked, “Is Goldy your friend?

Tengu replied, “No, Goldy is not my friend. Timu Frog told me to help Goldy and I was ready.”

Chimpu Elephant then went to Timu Frog. When he asked Timu whether Goldy was his friend, he said she was.

He said to Chimpu, “Goldy had asked for help but I am myself so small, how can I help her? So I asked Tengu Alligator. Then Tengu asked Meeku Crane and Meeku asked you for help.”

Chimpu was surprised.

He thought, 'They are all so good. In spite of being so small, they are all ready to help one another. I am so big. I should help them surely.'

He then reached Goldy and said to him, "Don't worry, Goldy. You have so many friends. Even I am your friend. I will save your life."

Chimpu collected all his elephant friends of Champakvan. They were all ready to be with him. All of them reached the pond in which Goldy lived.

They filled water in their trunks. Fishes too entered the trunks with water. Goldy was also among them. Then the elephants threw the water in a pit. When the pit was filled with water, the fishes again started swimming in it.

Goldy was safe now. There was no threat to her life. No animal knew about the pit so nobody came there.

Goldy heaved a sigh of relief. She thanked her friend Timu Frog and all other animals who helped her. Now all were friends. ●

Naughty Champu

by Afaq Khan

CHAMPU Monkey lived in Champakvan. He was very naughty. Everytime he troubled someone or the other. Sometimes he would run away with someone's food and sometimes hide himself and throw a stone on someone. All were highly troubled by him.

There was a swamp in the jungle. Animals did not generally go that side. Only those animals went that side whose fields were there.

One day after working for some time in the field, Lambu Giraffe, Cheeku Rabbit and Meeku Bear took a break for lunch. They sat together with their lunch packets when Champu Monkey snatched their food and climbed on the tree.

"Champu, return our food," Cheeku Rabbit said.

Champu replied, "If you want your food back, come on the tree and take it."

Lambu Giraffe asked Meeku Bear to climb on the tree and bring back the food.

Meeku climbed the tree and moved towards Champu to take the food back. In order to flee from him Champu jumped to the other branch which could not take Champu's weight and broke. Champu fell in the swamp below.

"Help, help….." the monkey yelled.

Getting down of the tree Meeku said, "Good, he used to trouble us a lot. Now he will sink and die."

"No, this is not correct. He too stays in the jungle with us. We must save him," Cheeku said.

"Yes, he must get a chance to improve," Lambu Giraffe seconded Cheeku.

In the swamp Champu was struggling to save himself from sinking in. In this process he was sinking more and more.

Cheeku shouted, “Champu, stop beating your hands and legs or you will sink faster. We will try to save you.”

All the 3 took out their clothes and tied them with each other and threw it to Champu. Champu promptly caught it and came out.

Champu was ashamed of himself. He said, “You have done a great favour on me by saving my life. I have now understood that I must not trouble anyone and live unitedly and happily.” ●

The Ants

THE ANTS are the smallest and the cleverest insects. They work hard and they live in the Ant Hills. They never interfere in the jobs of others. They do not harm others. From tiny creature we can learn hard work, sense of duty, discipline and care for young.

We want to work hard, we want to do our duty regularly. Caring for the young is most important. When they go everywhere, they go in a line.

The queen ant marry with other ants in the air. She cut her wings in the air. She lay eggs in the rooms of Ant Hills. The soldier ants take care of the grubs. The soldier ants carry out the grubs for airing, exercise and sunshine. It takes 5-6 week to become a complete ant for a grub. The new ants are trained for the jobs of workers, soldiers, cleaners and builders etc.

In the Ant Hill some other insects also live. They are lessers breeds of ants, beetles and greenfly. The greenfly are cows for the ants.

They give the sweet juice to the ants. The soldier ants live in the rooms called barracks. The soldier take care of the grubs and their kingdom.

The ants talk each other with their antenas when they are going in a line. They attach their antenas to talk with each other. If they are going in a line and if we throw a leaf, it will go in the another line.

So, simply we can say that the ants are the hard workers and disciplined insects. And they do their duty regularly.

The Mule and the Elephant

ONCE UPON a time there was a girl called Mona. She had a mule and an elephant. The animals used to transfer the things for her. The elephant was the favourite of Mona because he was like a friend for her. She gave better food and attention to the elephant. So the mule was disappointed. He never complained and quietly ate straw instead of grass and hay. They both carried logs to the market. But the mule always carried the heavier load to the market.

As the time passed, the elephant became more powerful and mighty. And the mule became very thin and frail.

Once, the animals were going to the market. The elephant was carrying just a few logs and the mule was carrying heavy load on his back to the market. The mule are feeling week.

He stopped and said to the elephant, "I am not feeling perfect. I cannot move ahead now."

The mule continued, "Why don't you share some of my load."

The elephant felt himself more superior. He laughed and replied, "I can't help you. Our master has ordered you to carry the heavy load."

The miserable mule slipped and fell down on the sloping road. He turned towards the elephant for help. He shouted, "Please help me otherwise I will die."

The elephant looked at him and replied, "Try, try. I am sure you can manage." The mule was not able to keep at him and control.

He fell down on the ground. Mona saw him and came running for help. The poor animal died and then Mona said, "He served me well for so many years. His load must have been too heavy."

Then Mona turned towards the elephant and said, "Come here, now it is your turn to serve me. Now carry your companion's load too."

Then Mona put the mule's logs on the elephant's back. The elephant repented and thought, 'I should have helped him when he was alive.'

The elephant continued to think, "But now I can also collapse under the weight."

But it was too late and the elephant had too carry the logs of both.

Meeku's Bridge

by Harendra Chakravorty

IN THE rainy season all the riverlets and drains of Champakvan were flowing full with water. Animals were finding it difficult to go to nearby jungles. Like every year the bridges made of sand swept away with the first rain.

Blacky Bear and Jumpy Monkey went to meet King Sher Singh. "Your Majesty, we want to talk something about the bridge to you," Blacky begged with folded hands.

"Speak fearlessly what you want to say," Sher Singh ordered.

"Your Majesty, Meeku has just returned after having done a course in Engineering. Please meet him once. He can build a good bridge," Jumpy said with pride.

Meeku Rabbit's intelligence was the talk of entire Champakvan. Sher Singh ordered Meeku to be present in court the next day.

Next day in the court all animals were present except Meeku. They were waiting for him restlessly.

"I don't think the little rabbit will come. He cannot do it," Gajju said to Jojo Giraffe and laughed.

Mini Maina came flying and angerily shouted, "He will surely come. Everywhere muscles don't work. There is something like brains also."

Everyone seconded Mini. Because of the noises the king was about to dismiss the court when Meeku reached. Everyone was happy seeing him.

"I apologise for the delay, Your Majesty. Actually, the rear wall of my house fell this morning. I did not realise the time while repairing it," Meeku said with his head bent.

"Your Majesty, someone who cannot build a strong wall of his house, how can he make a bridge on the river," all the animals in the court burst out in wild laughter as Gajju Elephant trumpted.

'Order…order…' Jacky Jackal screamed and quietened everyone. All knew Gajju was humorous. Nobody really paid attention.

Sher Singh granted 5 days time to Meeku. He had to make a bridge on Chandan river. He could take as much help from the state as he liked. Everyone welcomed the decision and left.

Meeku became busy from the next day in building the bridge. Many animals came to help him in this work. Wood from trees like shesham, sagaun and sal were cut in joined.

The bridge was ready the fourth day. All jumped with happiness.

Sher Singh also came at the spot and praised the bridge a lot. He was inaugurating the bridge then and there but Meeku stopped him.

With his hands folded he said, "What is the hurry, Your Majesty? It will be only proper to inaugurate during sunrise."

Gajju was waiting for an opportunity. He murmured, "Why? Is the moon your enemy or are you averse to the evening? Why can't it be inaugurated just now?"

Many animals agreed with Gajju. But Meeku had worked overtime to build the bridge so the king did as Meeku wished.

It was about to get dark. The animals went away home.

Meeku also returned and lay down on his bed. He could not sleep. He got up midnight and reached the king's palace. The king was woken up.

"What is the matter, Meeku? At midnight....the sun is yet to rise," rubbing his eyes Sher Singh asked.

"The time for inauguration has come, your majesty. Come soon or it will be late. Someone else may..." Meeku was nervous.

Sher Singh did not understand. But still he proceeded with some soldiers with Meeku. By then other animals also came hearing the sounds.

Everyone reached the river and was shocked to see what they saw. Sher Singh was burning with anger too.

Gajju, with a heavy hammer in his hands was destroying the bridge. His truth had come out. He was shaking with fear.

"Forgive me, your majesty. I destroyed the bridges every year because I did not want anyone else to do good business by going across the river. I am the only animal in Champakvan who can cross the river with lots of goods on my back. I can swim too."

Tears were rolling out of Gajju's small eyes.

Meeku informed that he had doubts on Gajju when he first spotted footsteps near the broken wall of his house.

The elephant wondered near the bridge all night.

Gajju was repentant of his doing. On Meeku's recommendation Gajju was forgiven on 2 conditions.

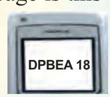

First, that he would distribute half his wealth to others and secondly, if needed, he would help animals to cross the river on his back.

Gajju obeyed the king willingly. ●

Lazy Tomy

by Kamal Kishore Kasnayal

TOMY WAS a lazy dog who lived in Champakvan. His parents were highly upset with Tomy's attitude. He spent most of his time eating and sleeping.

This time the children had to write an essay on 'My Hobby' in the exam. Tomy wrote, "My favourite hobby is to eat a lot and sleep."

And while writing it, he slept off. He got a shouting for it. He passed the exam with great difficulty.

Because of eating and sleeping a lot, he had gone fat. He used to be unwell most of the time.

Another dog named Tiger lived in his neighbourhood. He studied in Tomy's class. He was intelligent and smart.

One day, Tiger’s mother made pudding. Tiger went to Tomy's house to give him some. Tomy was in the market with his mother at that time. His father Rony was sitting in the lawn and reading newspaper Jungle Times.

“Good morning, uncle,” Tiger wished Rony.

Rony smiled and replied, “Dear Tiger, you have come here after a long time?”

“Mummy has sent some pudding for you,” handing over the bowl to Rony, Tiger said.

By then Tomy also returned from the market with his mother.

“Hurrey, pudding, thank you Tiger,” snatching the bowl from Rony's hands Tomy ran inside.

Disappointed Rony commented, “We are very upset with his habit of eating too much and his laziness. We tell him to take care of his health but he does not listen.”

“Not with counselling, now he will understand by learning a lesson, uncle,” Tiger spoke after pondering a little.

“What do you mean?” Rony asked surprisingly.

Tiger whispered his plan in Rony's ears. Rony had a satisfactory smile on his face.

Next day was a Sunday. Tomy woke up at 8 in the morning. He saw that his parents were making some preparations.

"Where are you preparing to go early in the morning today, mummy?" Tomy asked lazily.

Mummy answered, "We are going for a picnic. You can come along if you get ready in half an hour. Otherwise you can stay at home."

Tomy was disturbed. It was impossible to get ready in half an hour but on mother's condition he started getting ready fast. He was ready exactly in 35 minutes, but without bathing.

Tomy thought that no one would know about it. But his parents were smiling at him. In the meantime Tiger also came by. He was absolutely ready for the picnic. They all left for the picnic spot.

A big river crossed their way. All started thinking of ways to cross it. Suddenly, Gajju Elephant who was standing at the other side shouted, "Don't worry, I will make a bridge for you right now."

Gajju pulled up a dry tree wood over the river and a bridge was ready. All of them started crossing one by one. Tomy was the last of all. As he came ahead to step on the bridge, Gajju removed the bridge with his trunk.

An upset Tomy complained, "What have you done, Gajju Uncle? I too have to cross."

"Oh, something has gone wrong. I will ... it seems my trunk is sprained. I am not able to lift the wood," Gajju spoke groaning.

Tiger screamed, "Now you will have to swim to cross the river, Tomy."

Initially, Tomy was afraid but his father reminded him that he can swim. Swimming was natural to dogs.

Tomy jumped in the river and swam across. Everyone praised him. He had gone drenched and now he was feeling cold.

Tiger said, “Come on Tomy, let us race till the picnic spot. This will warm up your body and your clothes too will dry.”

Both ran. By the time they reached Tomy was exhausted. He was heaving. By then Tomy's parents came. They spread the sheet on the grass. Mummy started preparing for lunch but they had no wood.

Tiger offered, “Me and Tomy will get wood right away.”

Both went out of the jungle. They saw a tree. Tiger had got a rope with him. Both broke and collected some dry wood by throwing the rope. A piece of wood hit a beehive. The bees went wild and attacked Tiger and Tomy. Tiger was energetic. He ran fast. Tomy too ran. But the bees stung him badly and he was swollen. When they reached the picnic spot they saw that Tomy's parents were cooking food. Tiger told them everything.

Tomy's father said, “It was wise of me to have already looked for wood.”

Tomy was in a bad condition. He did not eat much. He was not finding picnic interesting. He had tears in his eyes.

Tiger asked, “Why are you crying, Tomy?”

“If I too were like you, I would not have been in such a trouble,” Tomy cried.

Tiger said, “If you leave your laziness, wake up early, go for run, eat less and nutritive then you can be like me.”

Tomy decided that he will be like Tiger. From the next day he woke up early and went running. He ate nutritive food. After 2 days he also became a smart dog.

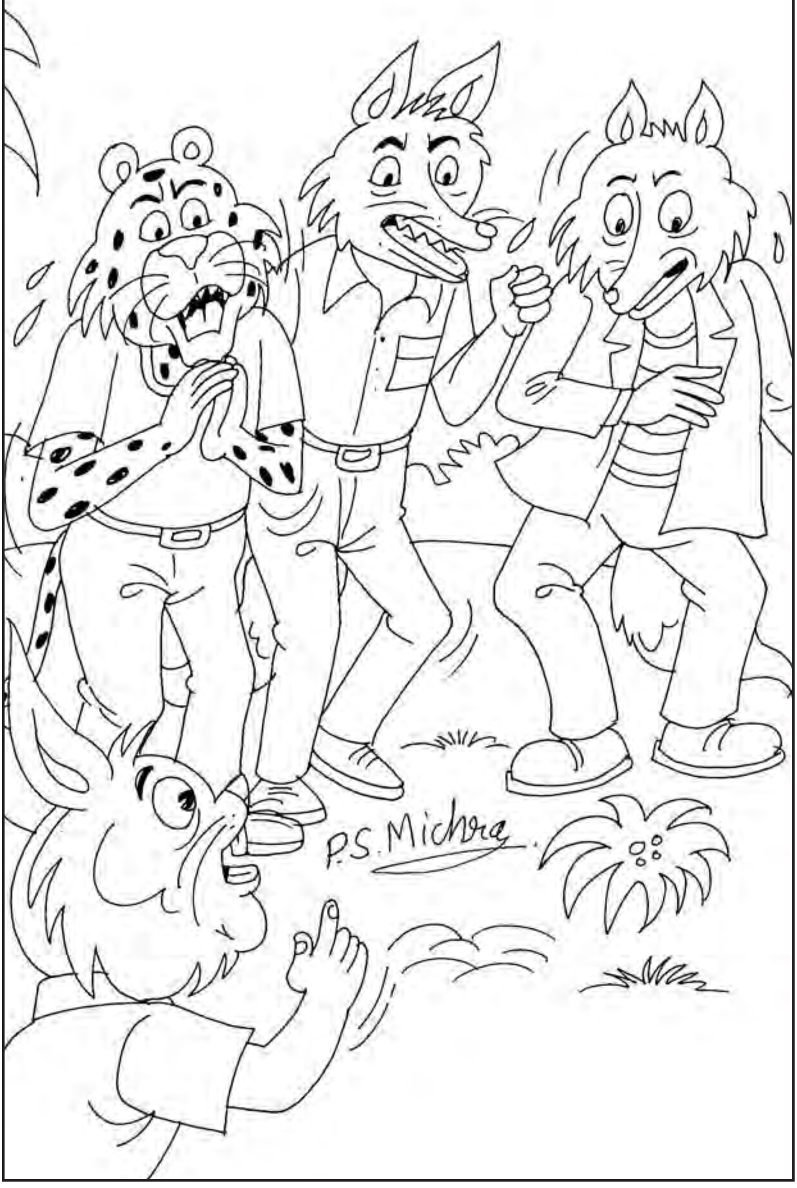

One day, looking at Tomy Tiger said to his father Rony, “Uncle, our picnic plan was successful.”

“What plan?” Tomy was inquisitive.

Tiger replied, “We had planned a picnic just to remove your laziness. Gajju Elephant and the bees too helped us.”

Tomy was surprised but was equally happy that the plan had changed his life. In this happiness, they planned to go for another picnic. ●

Balloon Man

by Rajendra Kumar Raj

'MY MATHS homework is pending. I will not go to school today. Let me complete the school time by spending time here or there,' thinking so Nishu was walking to school half-heartedly. A mini truck turned in the lane that led to the school. Nishu ran after it and hung himself to its rear. He saw that the truck was loaded with toys. Nishu picked up a bus-like toy and kept in his bag.

Outside the city at the checkpost, police was checking vehicles. The truck too lined up. Nishu got down and started walking to his house. As he reached home late, his mother asked, "You are quiet late today, dear. Hurry up, be fresh, I will heat the food for you."

Nishu went to his room and hid the toy. Freshening himself up, he went to eat food.

The truck with toys was confiscated on checking. On investigation the driver and the cleaner revealed that the toys were fitted with bombs which will go off anytime within 24 hours. On counting the toys one bus shaped toy was missing.

The 2 had no clue about the missing toy.

Information was being constantly flashed on TV and radio that in case anyone finds the bus-shaped toy, he should immediately inform on 100 number. Inspector Ajay Singh started his search operation in the town with his Bomb Disposal Squad.

At home Nishu was playing in his room with the toy. 'Brother Yashansh is at home today. He can come anytime. I will go to the terrace to play,' and Nishu went to the terrace with the toy.

After watching news on TV Yashansh rushed to Nishu's room to say, "You know there is a news flashed on TV saying that anyone who finds a bus-like toy lying unclaimed, should immediately inform the police. If you find any toy like that, don't touch it."

Not finding Nishu in his room Yashansh started searching for him in the house. He looked on the terrace.

Seeing Yashansh suddenly Nishu hid the toy.

"What are you hiding, Nishu? Show me also," Yashansh asked.

"Nothing brother....nothing as such..." Nishu stammered in nervousness.

Yashansh got suspicious when Nishu stammered fearfully. He came near him and snatched what Nishu was trying to hide. He was shocked to see what the younger one had. When Yashansh threatened his brother seeing the same kind of toy with him, Nishu told all the truth.

Yashansh became almost numb. Leaving the toy on the terrace he ran down with Nishu and shouted, “You stupid, you should have at least told us that you have got this toy. You know this toy is a bomb and can blast off anytime. You cannot imagine what will happen when it blasts. Our house is right in the middle of the city. You don't know how many people will be killed,” and Yashansh moved out.

He straight went to Inspector Ajay Singh's house who lived close by. As the Inspector was not at home, Yashansh informed the police on phone. “Ajay Uncle, I am, Yashansh speaking. That bus like toy bomb was found by my brother and he brought it home. Right now that toy is lying on our terrace.”

“Yashansh dear, don't anyways fiddle with the bomb. We will soon be reaching there,” and Ajay disconnected the phone and rushed the PCR van to Yashansh's home.

There was a traffic jam on the way due to a procession. The PCR van got stranded. Ajay ordered traffic police to get the jam opened.

Yashansh again rang up after waiting for some time. In the meantime Yashansh himself took a dangerous decision. He went to the terrace and picking up the bomb rode his bicycle fast towards the city. The cycle too broke down after some distance.

Yashansh threw the cycle there itself and started running. 'If I put the bomb in the gutter, it will blast there also. Unfortunately, there is no garbage bin or some well nearby and the jungle is one km far. If the bomb explodes here, I will be killed and hundreds of innocents will die,' he thought.

While running fearlessly many times he banged into goods lying on the footpath. Even after falling many times he again got up and ran.

"If you wish to win the marathon get up early in the morning and run," someone commented.

"Can't you see? Running like a blind," Yashansh was running madly ignoring the taunts of the shopkeepers.

As Inspector Ajay Singh reached Yashansh's house, his mother informed, "Yashansh has gone somewhere on his bicycle, I don't know where."

Inspector Singh quickly climbed the stairs and went to the terrace. Not finding the bomb he was highly upset. He returned immediately.

He ordered the PCR van, "Quickly run towards the jungle. Maybe, Yashansh has gone to the jungle to throw the bomb."

Suddenly, Yashansh fell on the road after hitting a bicycle with balloons coming from the main road. The toy broke and fell far away. Picking up his cycle the balloon man caught Yashansh's collar and shouted, "Can't you see? Where are you running away?"

Yashansh acted innocent. He tried getting up and again fell. He realised that his right leg was paining. He got up with one leg and balancing himself moved towards the toy.

His eyes suddenly fell on the bunch of balloons tied to the cycle. An idea struck him. He said to the balloon man, "Give me maximum balloons you can. Take this advance money," and he gave him 100 rupees. The balloon man quickly started filling air in the balloons and handing over to Yashansh.

He asked, "Are you buying these balloons for your birthday." Yashansh did not reply. When he collected 70-75 balloons he tied the toy to the collective strings of all the balloons and left them in the sky.

A PCR van stopped there. Getting down from the van Inspector Singh quickly advanced towards Yashansh.

"Yashansh, where is the bomb? Reply fast."

Pointing towards the sky Yashansh said, "There is the bomb, uncle." All lifted their eyes to the sky and saw the toy flying away tied to the colourful balloons.

Suddenly, a big blast echoed in the sky. The balloon man looked at Yashansh with shocking eyes.

As Inpsector Singh saw blood draining from Yashansh's leg, he said, “You have hurt your leg probably.”

“Maybe it is a fracture,” Yashansh was groaning with pain.

The policemen supported him and laid him down in the van.

“Take rest of your money,” the balloon man handed the money to Yashansh.

“No, you keep them with you. If I had not banged into you, so many innocent people would have been killed. I got the idea only after running into you and a terrific tragedy was averted.”

“Son, I admire your patience and value your feelings. Forgive me for what I spoke to you unknowingly and you listened quietly,” the balloon man said with folded hands.

Yashansh took leave of him saying, “Children should not feel bad at elders, scoldings.”

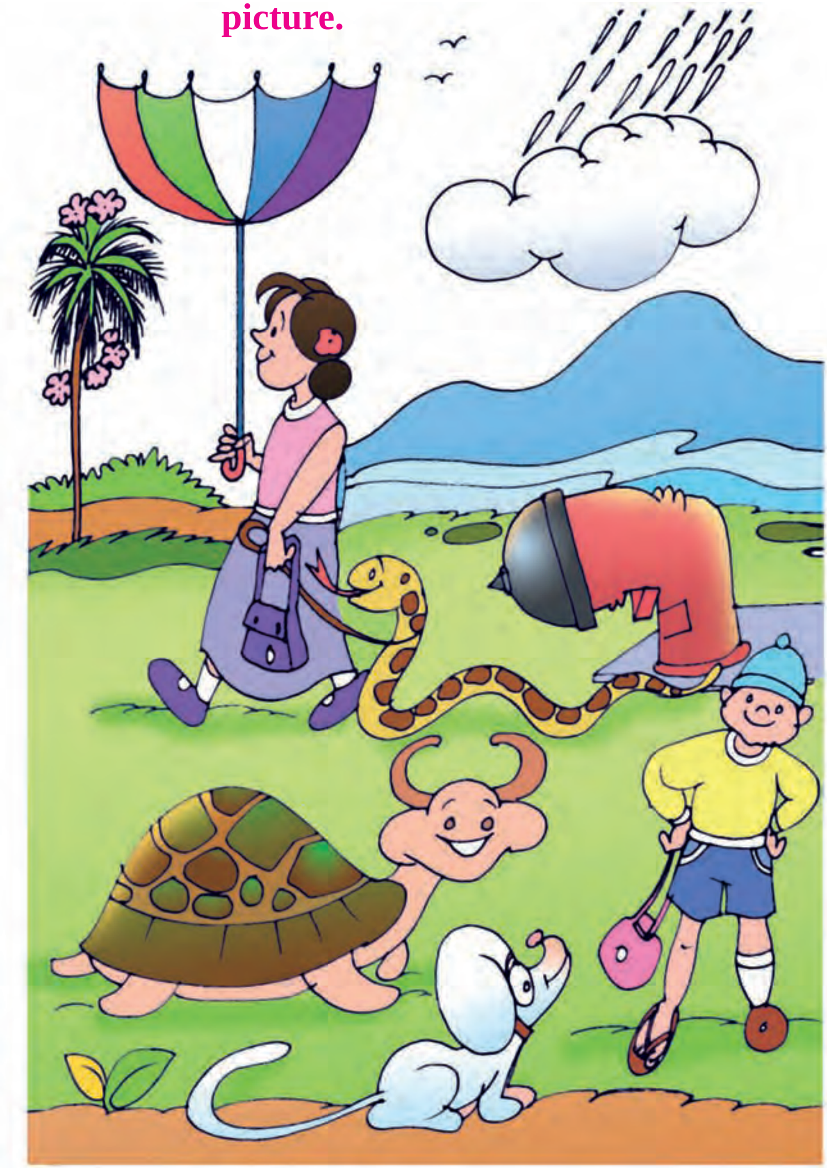

Yashansh's parents promptly reached the hospital on knowing about him.

“Forgive me, brother. My foolishness has created so much trouble for everyone,” Nishu cried and apologised.

“Don't get disheartened, Nishu. What was to happen has happened. I had explained you so many times but you did not listen. A man who does not listen only improves after committing mistake and learning a lesson.”

Nishu listened to Yashansh’s advice quietly. He promised to improve himself. ●

GINI BITCH dug a safe place for herself under the huge neem tree and hid her 4 new-born pups there. On finding her close, all the 4 clung to her for a feed.

The jungle was infested with animals who hunted for the litters. Frightened with the danger Gini went out for a very short while and returned quickly after eating something.

Gini would not hesitate to even steal for her children's sake. She was only worried that her children may get food and enough milk to drink.

One day, Gini went out in search of food. She surprisingly met Tuna billy (he goat).

"How are you, Gini?" Tuna asked.

"Good."

"Seen after a long time?"

"Can't go far because of children. I have to be there to look after them."

"Congratulations, Gini."

"Thanks. It seems that you are going to town."

"Yes, there is some important bank work. See you later," and Tuna proceeded.

Tuna lived on the same route where Gini was going. Nobody was there at Tuna's house. Mini nanny (she goat) was working somewhere at a distance. Hungry Gini could smell some good food from Tuna's house.

Gini looked here and there. Nobody was around. She entered in the house and started eating food.

Suddenly, Tuna returned. He got wild seeing Gini stealing. Tuna shouted angrily.

"Forgive me, Tuna. For children..." as Gini was giving excuse, Tuna picked up a big piece of wood lying close and hit Gini on her head. Gini fell flat.

"You thief! Good she died," Tuna cursed. He then called out his wife Mini working in the field and told her about Gini. Mini was nervous hearing what happened.

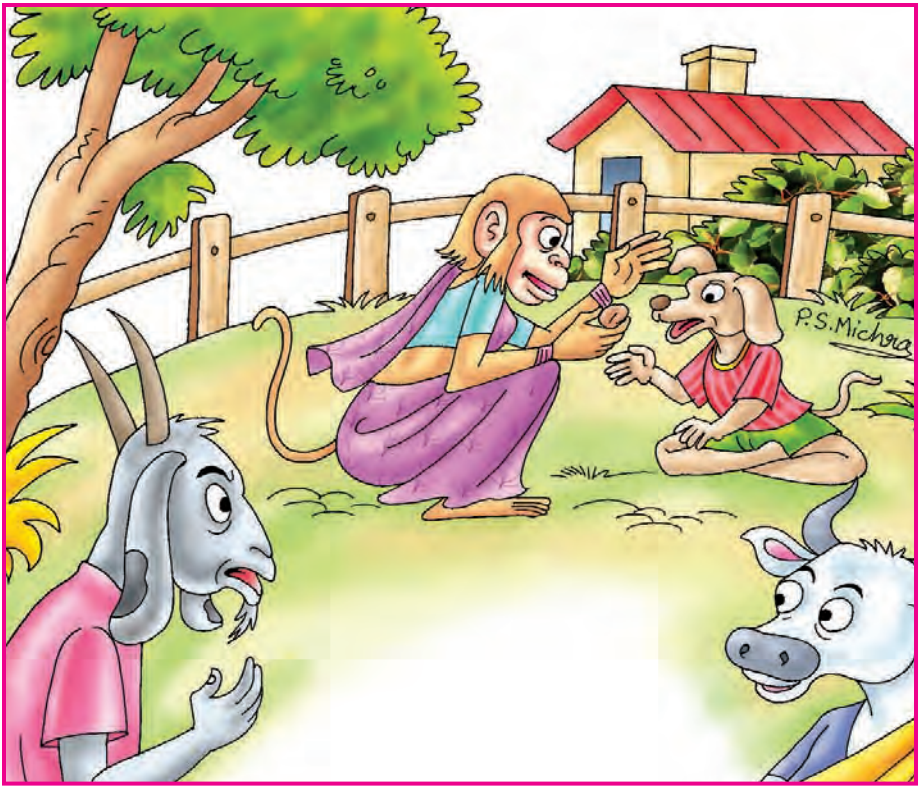

"Why are you frightened? It is jungle rule here. A little carelessness becomes the reason for death. Had Gini been careful, she would not have met this end."

Why were you so angry? The food eaten by her was not of our use. I would have cooked more food."

"Now you do not preach me. I have acted right. Let us throw this out," Tuna and Mini dragged the dead body of Gini and threw it in a pit.

Small little children of Gini cried all night waiting for their mother.

Three of the 4 children died of hunger after 2 days. One pup Chhotu came out of the hidout calling out for mother. Nobody felt pity on him.

Finally on the third day, Chhotu too fell lifeless searching for mother. Chanda Monkey who was jumping on the tree, saw Chhotu. She came near him and shook him. Chhotu was breathing.

Chanda felt pity on Chhotu. She picked him up and took him on the tree. She remembered her son seeing Chhotu who had died a week back falling from the tree. Chanda took Chhotu in her arms and fed him milk.

Chhotu got life back when Chanda looked after him. Chanda roamed with him the whole day. For Chhotu Chanda was his mother. Animals of the jungle made fun seeing them together.

Without caring for anyone, Chanda looked after Chhotu very dedicatedly.

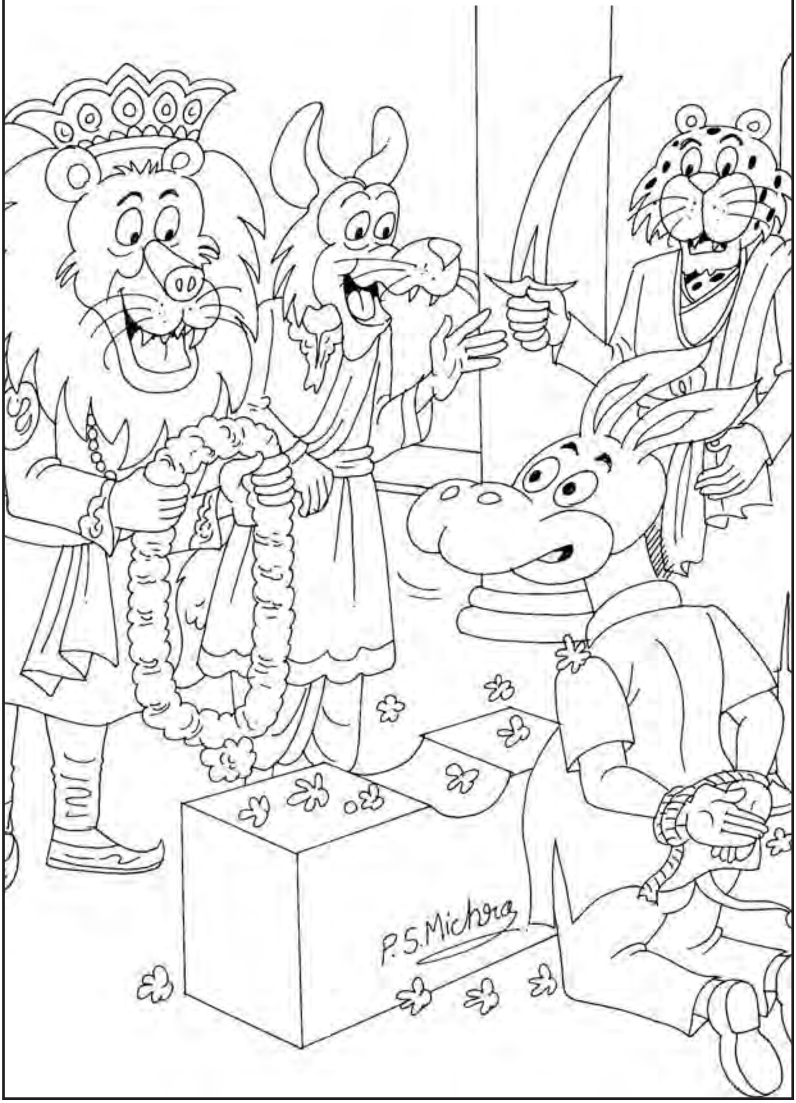

Whenever Tuna would see Chhotu, he remembered Gini's mischief. When Chanda went out in search of food she left Chhotu on a terrace and would return with a variety of things. Tuna did not like Chanda at all. He taunted her. Soon the love of Chhotu and Chanda became the talk of the jungle.

When the king came to know about this, he was surprised, "How amazing it is that a monkey has taken the responsibility of bringing up a puppy. If every one in the jungle has such generous feelings, our jungle can be an example to the whole world."

"You are right, Your Majesty. We must arrange for a ceremony to honour Chanda," minister Bhalu Singh suggested.

The king agreed. In front of all jungle animals the king honoured Chanda and condemned the one who killed Gini. Chanda and Chhotu were both very happy. Tuna Goat was ashamed of himself. He knew that he was responsible for it and that Chhotu became an orphan. ●

Rats come for help

ON THE news of floods in Sarnivan, all neighbouring jungles got together to provide relief for the animals of Sarnivan.

Small and big animals of Satpuravan too came forward to help. Seeing them the leader of rats

by Aparna Majumdar

Chunnu also thought of helping them.

He got declared that all rats will fast for a day and will contribute their one day meal towards relief material.

All the rats brought their share of food and deposited with Chunnu.

Chunnu Rat went to King Sher Singh with the collected food.

Saluting him Chunnu said, "Your Majesty, I have brought this relief material from my friends' side."

Minister Bahadur Leapord laughed at Chunnu's offer, "Not even one animal can fill his stomach with this much food. You can take back your relief material."

Chunnu Rat was disappointed on hearing Bahadur Leopard and had tears in his eyes.

King Sher Singh felt bad for Chunnu. He said, "The food may be less but I am happy by the effort made by you all. There are many animals in this jungle, who if donate their one day meal, many hungry animals can be fed. The help rendered by anyone is not small or big. The feeling behind it and the effort made is what is important. You must have heard a saying that drops of water together fill the pitcher."

Chunnu Rat was happy listening to the king but the leopard did not like the king's encouraging words.

King Sher Singh said to the leopard, "It has been a long time we have not dined together. Come over to my palace tomorrow for dinner."

Bahadur Leopard was very happy receiving invitation from the king. He thought, 'A variety of tasty snacks will be cooked at the king's palace. I will eat them stomach full,' and he did not eat anything the prior night so that he may eat a lot the next day.

He reached the king's palace before time next day. Making him sit on a small throne-like seat, the king said, "You relax and be seated. The food is getting ready."

Lot of time passed. Morning turned into afternoon but food was not yet laid out in front of Bahadur Leopard.

The king came at small intervals to the leopard to say, "Rice is being cooked, chicken has been put in the oven, all will be ready soon."

He again came back after some time and said, "Pudding is just ready. A little dry fruits and sugar are to be put."

Similarly, naming some snacks the king would assure that they were just ready and will be soon laid out.

Sitting on the seat Bahadur Leopard was getting restless. His hunger became stronger with the thought of tasty food. He was extremely hungry but could not say anything to the king.

Suddenly, he saw Dinu Jackal, soldier of King Sher Singh, eating something. The leopard could not resist his hunger.

Calling Dinu Jackal he asked, "Will you give me something to eat?"

"Why? Has not the king called you for a feast? Wait, a variety of snacks will be served for you in a while," Dinu assured him.

"I am dying of hunger. I am hungry since last night. Morning has turned evening waiting for food. I cannot get up and go too. The king will get annoyed. I can no longer tolerate hunger now," Bahadur insisted.

Giving some food from his plate to Bahadur

Leopard, Dinu said, "This will not fill even a small part of your stomach."

"Yes, you are right. This will not fill my stomach but it will at least kill my hunger," taking the little food the leopard said.

King Sher Singh was listening to them hiding behind. Coming out in front of them the king said, "Now do you realise that whatever the amount of food, hunger can at least be killed."

The leopard understood that the king had treated him like this to teach him a lesson for making fun of Chunnu Rat's offer.

Asking forgiveness Bahadur said, "Your Majesty, I realise my mistake. I have come to know how little food can also give so much relief in hunger. Accepting my mistake I donate one day salary towards the relief fund to Sarnivan."

The king was happy to hear Bahadur's decision. Then both had meals together. ●

Elephant, My Friend

by Neeta Chawda

SUNDERVAN WAS thick and beautiful forest. Being closer to the town, trees were being felled and terror of hunters was increasing in the forest. Because of trees getting cut, animals could not find place to hide and hunters would catch them easily.

Therefore animals started moving to nearby forests to save themselves.

Gajju Elephant lived in Sundervan too. He wanted to live in the forest for all his life but because of his friends leaving the forest and migrating to other forests, he was left alone. He was sad.

Champakvan was lush green and thick forest. It was situated between big mountains and a river. It was not easy for hunters to come because of the river and the forest being surrounded by the mountains.

Gajju was a friend of king of Champakvan Sher Singh. When Gajju reached Champakvan, King Sher Singh welcomed him with pleasure. He made Gajju visit the whole jungle and introduced all the animals to him. At the same time he arranged for his stay in the nearby garden of flowers adjacent to his den.

Gajju's happiness knew no bounds seeing such a beautiful garden in Champakvan. He was enjoying thoroughly. He was unaware of the fact that other animals would not like his staying at this beautiful garden of fruits. The animals were annoyed at the decisions of their king.

Seeing the big built of Gajju Elephant, the animals discussed that the king should not allow Gajju to stay there. With this fear in mind that Gajju will finish all the fruits of the garden in a few days, all animals of Champakvan called a meeting.

All small and big animals of Champakvan came for the meeting.

Chimpo Monkey said, "We all have been staying in this fruits garden since childhood. This is our only support. Our king did not think for once that Gajju will finish all the fruits of the garden in a month."

Kalu Bear seconded Chimpo, "Yes, Chimpo is correct. I know that the diet of elephants is so much that it will not take much time for him to finish all the fruits of the garden. Then we will all starve."

Hearing Chimpo and Kalu, Rani Vixen said, "Wish the king had not shown the garden to Gajju. There is still time. Let us meet King Sher Singh and request him not to let Gajju stay in the garden of fruits."

Rani Vixen had not finished saying when Jonny Leopard interrupted, "You don't know that our king and Gajju are old friends. He will not tell him to go from here. Therefore, we ourselves must think of some plan that will make Gajju go away himself."

Jonny Leopard added, "I have come to know that Gajju lived in Sundervan earlier. Animals of Sundervan moved out of the forest with the fear of hunters. Due to lonliness Gajju also came to Champakvan.

"If we do not make friends with Gajju and keep troubling him, he will soon run away from Champakvan. This way our fruit garden will be saved."

This suggestion of Jonny Leopard was liked by everyone. So it was decided that no animal will be friends with Gajju.

Gajju was very sensible. He observed that all animals of Champakvan lived happily with one another but no one talked to him.

Gajju was quiet upset with this but he was sure that he would soon be friendly with all. But he soon realised that animals of Champakvan were not happy by his coming and so were not accepting him easily. He could not understand their problem with him.

One day when Gajju was roaming in the garden, he heard Kalu talking to Chimpo Monkey.

Chimpo said, "This elephant keeps roaming in the garden. If we don't make him run away from here, he will finish all the fruits of the garden."

Kalu replied, "Talk soft. He is our king's friend. If Gajju listens, he will tell the king and we will be in trouble."

Hearing Chimpo and Kalu Gajju understood why no animal liked him staying here.

Gajju sat under a tree. He thought that he would call a meeting of the animals with the help of the king and tell everyone that he has come to stay happily with all the animals in Champakvan and not to trouble them.

After a lot of thinking Gajju decided not to take the king's help in this matter but to win animal's hearts so that they accept him as their friend.

It was almost a month since Gajju came to live in the garden. Now he started knowing everyone well but was unable to make friends with them.

One day, some hunters came into Champakvan. All animals hid in safe places.

The hunters kept searching for animals from morning till evening but could not find anyone. They understood that the animals had hidden somewhere in deep jungle. The hunters were so disappointed that they spread fire in the jungle before going.

Once they left, the jungle caught fire badly. All animals came out. The news of fire spread everywhere and reached the king. He too came out.

Nobody was knowing what to do to douse the fire. Meanwhile, Gajju Elephant came and said something to King Sher Singh.

After hearing his friend the king said to all animals, "Friends, if we did not control this fire, the entire forest will get burnt. Then we will not be alive. Gajju Elephant has a plan. Do as he says."

Gajju brought water from the river near Champakvan and started throwing on the fire. Seeing him other animals too according to their capability brought water from the river and started throwing on the fire. All animals were watching Gajju throw water hurriedly.

Gajju's efforts were showing results. The fire started going out but Gajju did not stop till the fire went off entirely.

In this exercise Gajju was so tired that he fell on the ground. Seeing him fall, all animals—big and small—gathered around him.

King Sher Singh asked Chimpo Monkey and Kalu Bear to get some fruits from the garden. Both quickly brought a basket of fruits.

Gajju refused to eat the fruits. He told the king, "I cannot eat these fruits. The fruits in the garden will decrease if I eat them. Then what will my friends have?"

All animals were ashamed hearing what Gajju said. They apologised to him. Gajju forgave them all.

The animals then shouted together, "Gajju is our friend, long live Gajju...."

Gajju was very happy today as he was sure that the animals had become his friends. ●

Magic of Voice

by Uma Shankar Yadav

JUMPU MONKEY was expert in taking out different voices. He was showing his magic on the stage of 'Jungle Natak Committee'. He would sometimes take out the sound of an aircraft and sometimes 'chhuk chhuk' of a train. When he took out the braying sound of a donkey, children were impressed. After the crowing sound of a crow he took out sounds of a cuckoo in a mango grove and then an elephant's trumpet. The show ended with the roar of a lion giving goosepimples to all children.

People clapped with thrill. Then the prizes were announced. This way Jumpu earned bread and butter for himself and his family.

One day, Jumpu fell ill. While climbing, he fell from the stairs as he felt giddy. He got hurt on his head. His wife, Goni took him to Gidar Sen hospital.

Receptionist Vixen said, "Deposit 7 thousand rupees and then you will be treated."

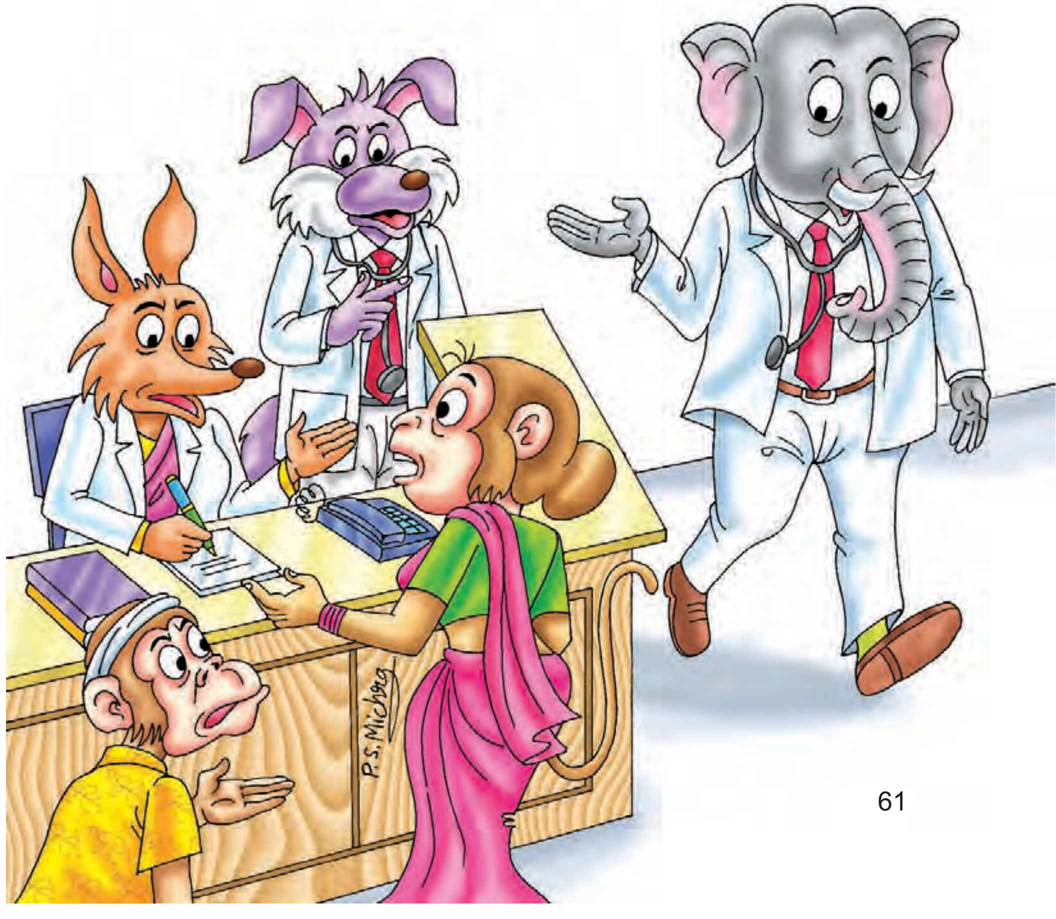

"But I have only 5,000

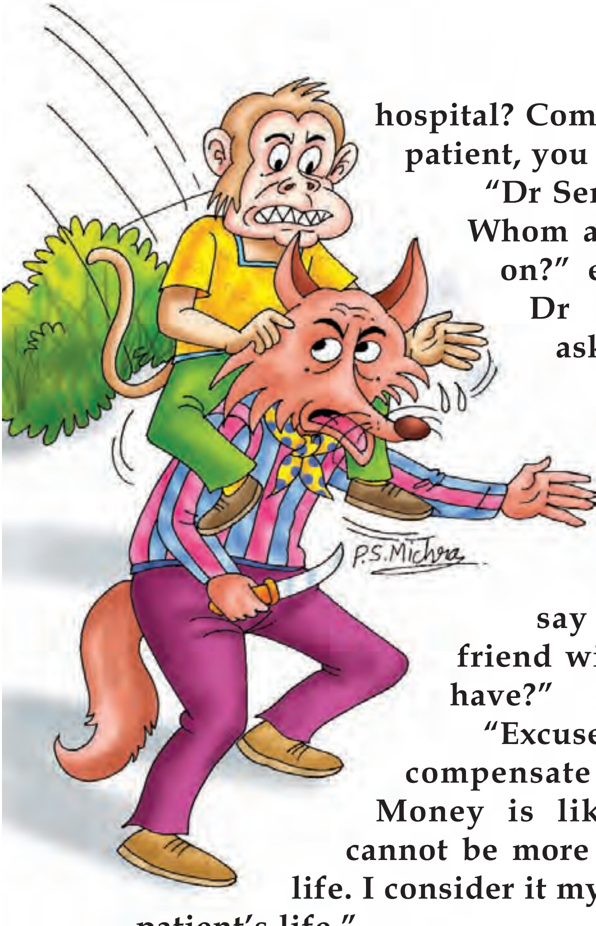

rupees just now," Goni said.

Gidar Sen was standing there. The vixen looked at him. Gidar Sen said, "Money will be charged for any work."

"Doctor, I will manage 2,000 rupees from somewhere. You start the treatment. If anything happens to Jumpu, his memory fails or his voice goes away, we will be on streets. Our children will die of hunger."

"This is a hospital not a shop. If we start treating people like this, we will have to go to the temple for food. Have you thought it to be a charitable hospital? Come on, vanish with the patient, you beggar."

"Dr Sen, what is the matter? Whom are you getting angry on?" entering the hospital Dr Jumbo Elephant asked.

"Look Dr Jumbo, this monkey is pleading for treatment. She does not have 2,000 rupees. You say if a horse makes friend with hay, what will he have?"

"Excuse me Mr Sen, I will compensate for 2,000 rupees. Money is like dust in hand. It cannot be more precious to anyone's life. I consider it my prime duty to save a patient's life."

Jumpu soon became all right after treatment. Goni and Jumpu thanked Dr Jumbo. With gratitude he returned the 2,000 rupees of Dr Jumbo.

Jumpu again started attending programmes. One day, he was going on his cycle in the evening. The road was deserted. He was in a hurry to reach the programme so he was cycling fast. Suddenly, his eyes fell on the roadside where some bikers had stopped a car.

Jumpu recognised Dr Gidar Sen whose car was surrounded by some rogues.

Some snatching was taking place. He carried on riding his cycle.

Suddenly, the siren of a police van was heard. It was Jumpu's trick not a police van.

"Run, run, police," the criminals ran with fear.

Jumpu jumped and climbed a criminal's shoulder. Two of them fled.

The one caught was handed over to the police. He was the head of bikers gang Sekhu Jackal.

Dr Gidar Sen was astonished with the courage of Jumpu. He was repenting remembering the happening in the hospital. His heart was heavy. The next day he reached Jumpu's house.

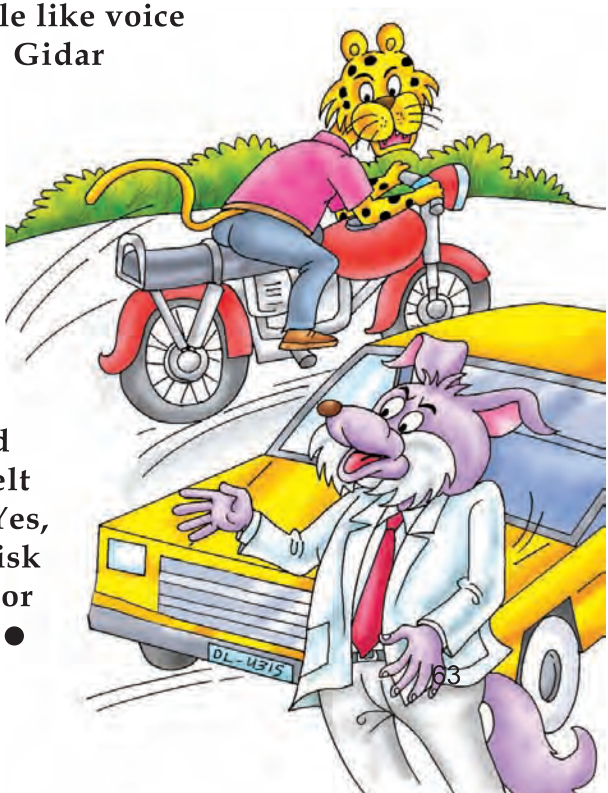

Apologising to Goni Gidar Sen said, "The one whom I refused to treat for money has saved my life today. I am surprised seeing Jumpu's courage."

"Doctor, you are a big man. Don't ask sorry to poor animals?" Goni said.

"No, no, a person can only be rich with money. A great person is one who helps others in trouble like voice magician Jumpu," Gidar Sen said.

Jumpu said, "Doctor, you are great. I have saved you. You have the capability to save thousands and thousands."

Gidar Sen smiled at Jumpu. He felt relieved. He said, "Yes, Jumpu, I will not risk anyone's life for money anymore." ●

Chocho And Kako

by Om Prakash Kshatriya

CHOCHO RAT was swimming in the river. He loved swimming. That is why he came to the river everyday. Kako Crab also lived there and both became friends.

"Chocho, let us race in the water today. Let us see who wins?" Kako challenged.

Chocho agreed, "Let us start the race from this end and finish on that end."

"All right."

"And yes," Chocho said, "the one who reaches that end first, will be the winner."

"Ok, come on, start.....one, two, three."

Both started swimming. Initially, Kako swam faster. But he was small and so he got tired fast. Chocho was behind. He increased his speed and started leading.

Then Chocho saw that Kako was not swimming properly. He asked, "Brother Kako, what happened?"

"Nothing much, brother, I just was heaving. Can't swim."

"What happened? Lost?" Chocho teased him.

"No brother," hiding his weakness Kako said, "I am not the ones to lose. Keep swimming." But the fact was that he had swam a lot today and he had no strength left. So he was not able to swim any longer.

Hearing Kako's faint voice Chocho guessed that Kako was unable to swim. He saw that Kako was feeling unwell. This way Kako would drown in the river.

Chocho immediately supported Kako, made him sit on his back and brought him ashore. He put him down on the shore.

Chocho saw that Kako was heaving for breath. He too lay down on the grass to relax.

"How are you feeling now, brother Kako?" Chocho asked.

"I am good now," Kako said, "you have helped me at the right time or I would have died drowning in water."

Telling him the fact Kako said, "I was already tired today but just to see your spirit and strength I asked you to race in swimming. And you agreed, so I swam. I was not actually ready to swim."

Chocho too was tired so he was relaxing on the grass. He did not know that Bonny Cat was watching him. He was carefree.

Suddenly, Bonny attacked. Before Chocho could understand anything, he was in Bonny's mouth.

Chocho screamed from Bonny's mouth, "Aunty, listen to me," he was thinking of getting out of her clutches by making a fool of her.

But Bonny did not utter a word. She knew that if she opened her mouth to speak, Chocho would escape.

"Aunty, listen to me at least," Chocho again shouted. "After that you can eat me if you want."

Bony still did not speak anything.

Kako was seeing all this. He thought that his friend Chocho's life was in danger. He too was frightened.

Then it struck to him that getting nervous will not help. He will have to be courageous.

Gathering courage Kako went to Bony. On the other hand Chocho was instigating Bony, “Aunty, don't listen to me but just turn behind and see, Tomy is standing,” he wanted to scare Bony.

Bony became nervous. She quickly turned behind and looked and screamed, “Save me, save me.”

As Bony screamed, Chocho fell from her mouth. And he ran.

But while running he saw that Kako was clinging to Bony's chest and stinging her and Bony was shrieking with pain while running. As soon as Kako was free from Bony's grip, Chocho leaped on Bony's chest.

Chocho came to Kako, “You have saved my life today, brother Kako or Bony would have eaten me up today.”

Kako replied, “There is no thanks giving within friends. You had saved my life so I too saved your life. Thanks for what? A friend in need is a friend indeed.”

“Good, a friend should be like this,” and Chocho hugged Kako and both the friends danced in happiness. ●

Meeku's Exploits in Australia

by Santha Nagarajan

MEEKU RABBIT'S sister Chinki was crying. Her baby Sweety Rabbit was adopted by Timmy Rabbit, a tourist from Australia. Since Timmy had no babies of her own, she begged to Chinki to give Sweety to her. Timmy used to write letters to Chinki giving news about Sweety but she soon stopped all contact with Chinki.

"Meeku, you go at once to Australia and find out where Timmy is and bring back my Sweety to me," she pleaded.

Meeku was excited about the unexpected chance to visit Australia.

Meeku came to know that Bablu, a school boy, would be touring Australia with the junior boys cricket team to play a few matches there. Meeku was once a favourite pet of Bablu. "Meeku, don't worry, you shall accompany me. I will talk to our manager," said Bablu.

With Bablu's help Meeku reached Sydney, the largest city and capital of New South Wales along with the cricket team.

Timmy lived in a sheep farm in a countryside in New South Wales. At the airport Meeku met a strange creature.

"Hello, I am Meeku from India. I come to search for a relative in New South Wales."

"I am an emu. Since emus are found only in Australia, you may not have heard about the emu, one of the largest birds in the world."

"Strange that a bird like you can't fly," exclaimed Meeku.

"Yeah, like ostriches we emus can not fly but are swift runners."

The emu read the address given by Meeku. "Oh, this place is in a remote countryside. It is a dangerous place for rabbits to live. You see, there are so many rabbits in Australia that they are pests. Because rabbits destroy valuable grass, sheep rearing farmers are killing them. Don't worry, I shall take you there."

Meeku and the emu soon reached the sheep farm where Timmy lived. "Look, the farm house here is protected by a rabbit proof fence to keep out the rabbits. There is no trace of Timmy Rabbit."

A lone rabbit living there told them that as the farmers were killing the rabbits, Timmy and Sweety fled to the forest.

Meeku and the emu at once left for the forest. There in the forest Meeku met a number of strange animals and birds.

Emu introduced them to Meeku. Kangaroo, koala, wallaby, wembat, platypus... animals and birds found only in Australia.

The emu told everyone about the purpose of Meeku's visit to Australia, "Please help him to find the Indian rabbit Sweety."

Suddenly, Meeku heard a loud laughter. "Don't be afraid. It is a kookaburra — a large kingfisher. He is called the 'laughing jackass' The countryside rings with the rowdy laughter of kookaburras," explained emu.

Lo! The kookaburra suddenly appeared near Meeku and said, "I saw an Indian rabbit just a few hours back in the grassland near a sheep farm."

The emu said, "Why don't you go with Meeku to the grassland and search for the missing rabbits? I am tired."

"I shall help him." A voice came from above. Meeku looked up. There a teddy bear like animal was sitting on a eucalyptus tree. The emu said, "This is a koala — Australia's famous animal... a koala spends most of its life on eucalyptus trees because it feeds only on the leaves of these trees."

Meeku rushed to the sheep farm along with the koala, "Oh my Sweety! Where are you?"

Meeku desperately searched all over the grassland.

Hurray! The koala discovered an underground rabbit colony. To his joy Meeku found a terrified Timmy and Sweety hiding there. Meeku told Timmy about his sister's request to bring Sweety to India.

"Mr. Meeku, I myself want to leave Australia. In this country the rabbit population is increasing so fast that they are being killed with the help of poison bait and other cruel means. Today I heard the farmer talking of killing the rabbit pests," said Timmy.

When they were talking, they heard a violent sound. "Oh, the farmer is ploughing up our underground colonies. Run... Run...?"

The farmer chased them with his gun, "I will shoot them all ... bloody pests? Destroying my crops and the grass."

Meeku, Timmy and Sweety hopped towards the tall shrubs where some kangaroos were resting.

Seeing the farmer with the gun, one large red kangaroo quickly pulled tiny Sweety into her pouch. Similarly, the other 2 also were helped to hide themselves inside the pouches of 2 large kangaroos.

They came out only in the dark. "Let us at once leave this country."

Bablu had given Meeku a phone number. "Let me contact Bablu."

"Bablu, my 2 companions ... and ... I must leave Australia. at once ... danger ... our lives are in danger ..." Meeku stammered.

"We are leaving Australia by today's flight, come to our hotel." Bablu explained how to reach the hotel.

The 3 rushed there. The hotel staff pounced on them. Bablu rushed to save them. " Please, don't harm them."

Bablu spoke to the officials. "We cricketers want to take these lovely rabbits to our country as souvenirs."

They readily agreed to his request.

Ha ha! Meeku arrived home from Australia with Timmy and Sweety. Chinki was reunited with her darling baby. ●

ONE DAY, the internal organs of the body—the Heart, the Kidney, the Liver, the Lungs and the Blood—got into argument with each other.

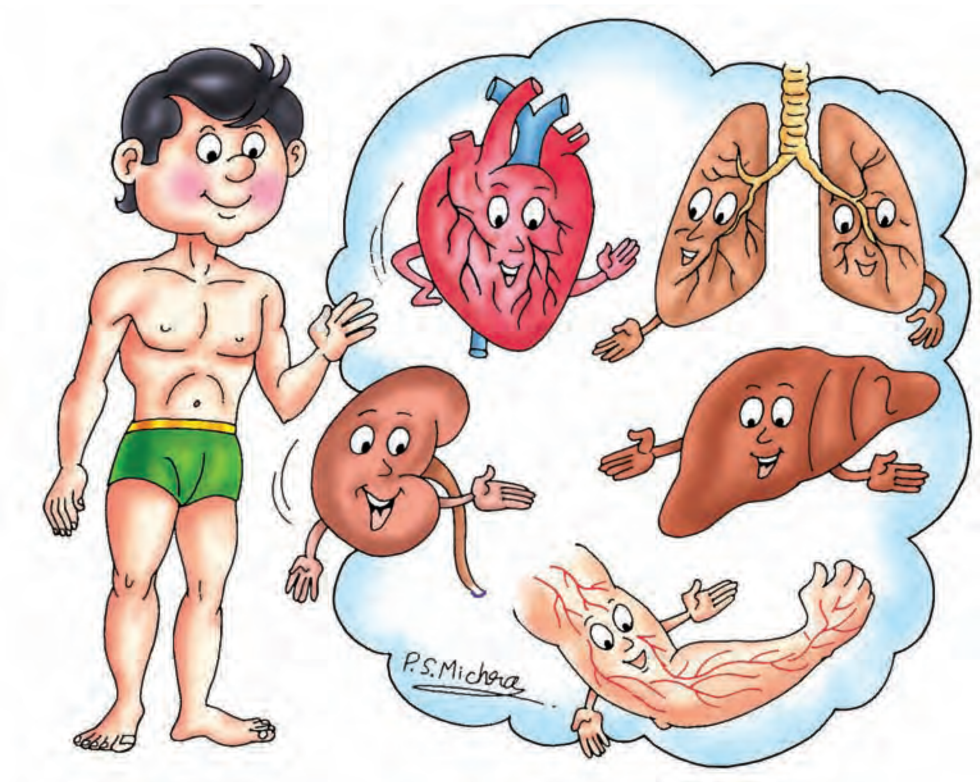

Every organ was boasting of their job to be very important.

The Blood said, "If I stop flowing even for few seconds, you all will be in trouble."

The Lungs said, "If I do not breath and take oxygen, you cannot remain pure. Because I draw oxygen you all are able to function. Do you know that much ?"

The Heart made others quite and said, "Both you had spoken about your peace of mind, it is I who works the most without taking a break. If I stop working, heartbeating will stop and all of you will stop working. So my role is the most important."

It was now the Liver who said, "Hello! It is me, who digests food and take out vitamins, minerals, enzymes from the food after proper digestion of the food. If I don't supply you the essential nutrients, you all will stop working."

The Kidney at the far end said, "My job is the most important. If I do not filter out the toxics and throw them out of the body, you all will have to live in the body full of toxics. Do you know that?"

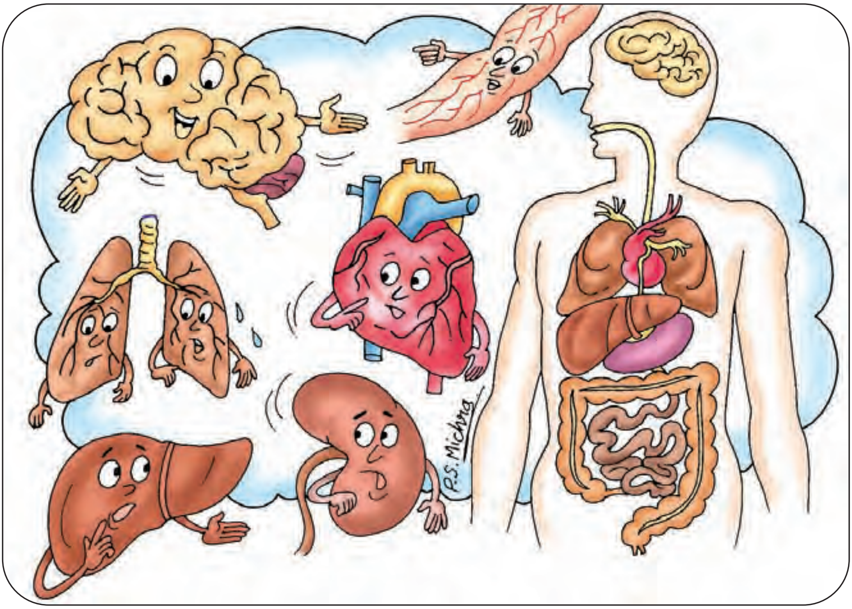

Their argument was increasing. Every organ was arguing to prove its superiority. Nobody wanted to lag behind in the arguments.

The Brain was listening to their argument for a long time. When all the arguing organs — the Heart, the Kidney, the Liver, the Lungs — did not arrive at any conclusion, they all decided to leave the decision making to the Brain. They also agreed that they all will agree with his decision.

The Brain said, "Nobody among us is great and the most important."

Every one joined the chorus, "How can it be? How come none amongst us is important? At least somebody among will be more important."

"You all listen to me carefully. We all are doing our part of the job. All the functions are important and complementary to each other. We are all part of the system as sub-systems and helping one another in some way or the other. If anyone of you stop functioning, it will impact all of you in an adverse way and in turn will impact your own functioning.

All the organs were listening to the brain carefully. The Brain then said, “Suppose, if the Lungs stops his work, then the Blood will not get oxygen for its purification. The Blood will not flow to the heart. And the Heart will find it difficult to function properly.”

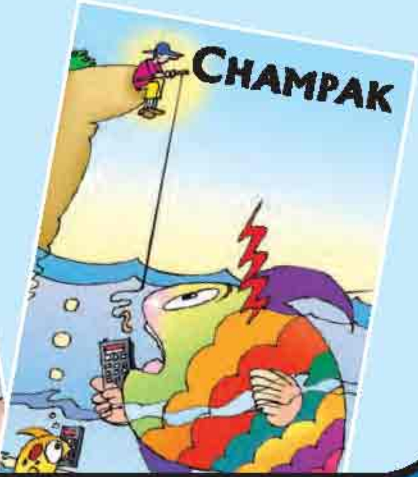

“Similiarly, if the Liver does not digest food properly and deliver essential vitamins, minerals, enzymes to the other body parts, the other organs will get weak and stop functioning. If the Kidney did not work, the body will become a big toxic dump.”

“When all of you function independently and properly, the entire body system will also function properly.”

The Brain's logic was well understood by all the organs. All the organs once again started doing their respective job. ●

CHINTI RANI

BY KHALIL KHAN

EVEN PRIOR TO THAT THE ANTS HAD AN IMPORTANT PLACE IN THE EARTH'S ECO SYSTEM.
DURING THAT PERIOD, HUMAN BEINGS WERE NOT THERE ON THE EARTH. STILL THE ANTS DID AN IMPORTANT WORK FOR THE HUMAN BEINGS.
WHAT WAS THAT GRANDFATHER?
THE ANTS MADE THE SOIL FERTILE FOR AGRICULTURE AND KILLED THE OTHER INSECTS ON THE EARTH.
THE ANTS DESTROYED THE ROOTS OF THE GRASS WHICH WERE OF NO USE.
ANTS HAD A BIGGER HAND IN SPREADING THE SEEDS OF FOOD GRAINS ALL OVER.
THE ANTS FACED DIFFICULTIES BUT THEY SURVIVED.

GRADUALLY, THE ANTS SAVED THEIR EGGS AND THUS NEW SPECIES OF ANTS DEVELOPED.
GATHERING THE FOOD GRAINS, HUNTING FOR FOOD LIKE HUMAN BEINGS, THE ANTS ALSO HAD THE ABILITY OF PRESERVING THE FOOD GRAINS IN THEIR EARTHEN COLONIES.
MANY SPECIES OF ANTS CAN BE FOUND IN NORTH AMERICA EVEN TODAY.
IF YOU CAN OBSERVE THE ANTS CLOSELY, YOU CAN LEARN LOT OF THINGS.
LIKE THE WAY ANTS GATHER EVERY SINGLE GRAIN OF FOOD GRAINS, YOU TOO CAN GATHER EVERY BIT OF KNOWLEDGE AND MAKE YOUR LIFE HAPPY. THAT IS WHY I SUGGEST YOU TO BE HARD WORKING LIKE ANTS.
THANKS GRANDFATHER. TODAY WE HAVE COME TO KNOW HOW SMART AND HARD WORKING ARE THE LITTLE ANTS.
